at moreland Davis, a wealthy miner classed as a "wet," was elected for Governor in Virginia.

Senator Stanley will attend the conference of Governors in Chicago, 16 if his engagements will permit. He has said nothing to indicate his attitude on the question of seizure of the mines.

One of the new rulings of Gen. Crowder is that a son-in-law cannot claim exemption if his mother-in-law is willing "to assume the burden of supporting his wife during his absence." This affords many a mother-in-law a chance to get even.

A negro who appeared for examination before the draft board at Fort Wayne, told the examining physician that he did not want to enter the cavalry. Asked why, the man replied: "Well, when the officer says retreat, I wants to be free to run; I don't want to have any horse to bother with."

The weekly statement of British merchant vessel losses shows a slight increase over the previous week. Twenty-one vessels of more than 1,000 tons and two of less than 1,000 tons were reported sunk by submarine warfare. In the previous week 18 vessels of 1,000 tons and 3 in the other category were reported sunk.

Miss Oma Sloan, 86, of Litchfield, Ky., said to be the oldest woman ever locked up in the jail at Vincennes, Ind., must serve 75 days in the woman's prison in Indianapolis on the charge of being a wanderer and without any means of making an honest living. Her daughter, Lillie Howk, was given a like sentence. It is thought Mrs. Sloan is the oldest woman ever sentenced to the woman's prison in Indiana.

Although the formal invitations to a conference of governors of sixteen producing states have not yet been issued, governors of eight of the states already have signified their sympathy with the movement to take drastic steps to reduce coal prices to a reasonable level and to attend the conference at Chicago, Aug. 16 for that purpose. Favorable word has been received from the governors of Missouri, Iowa, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Kansas, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois. Let us hope that the governor of Kentucky will be a leader in movement to serve his people.

Daniel O'Connell, an attorney, was arrested in San Francisco on a federal warrant charging resistance to the law. The warrant was served while he was addressing a meeting for the "American Conference for Democracy and Terms of Peace." The speaker hissed the officer who made the arrest. Former United States Senator John D. Works, of Los Angeles, said: "This arrest is a disgrace to the American people and is for the purpose of intimidating speaking people." Dr. David Starr Jordan, prominent pacifist, was present.

Sept. 1 the war department will for not exceeding one-third of the men from each State to enter mobilization camps Sept. 5. This means 12 of the 96 men from Christian County will be ready by that time. There is a new ruling regarding exemptions because of dependents. It is expected to decrease the number of men from military service. Exemptions are authorized hereafter to exemptions to married men whose wives are solely dependent on them, but where the parents or relatives of either wife or husband are willing to assume the burden of supporting his wife during his absence. The course is to be followed by any drafted man's employers to continue his salary as a patri-y. A third supplemental ruling provides that where a man has dependent dependents by his own land which he owns and the find that the land could be to advantage so as to continue support for the wife, the exemption of the man may be denied.

HOPKINSVILLE IS HONORED

By The Selection of One-Fifth of The Western Kentucky Officers.

SEVEN SPLENDID BOYS

Given Commissions, Two As Captain and Five as Lieutenant.

Hopkinsville was fortunate in the number of her young men who were honored with commissions at Ft. Benjamin Harrison. This city sent 15 young men to the training camp and three failed on physical tests in the final examinations, while two—W. O. Soyars and Jas. B. Winfree—were discharged on account of serious and prolonged illness. Mr. Soyars having to undergo an operation for appendicitis. Of the ten remaining to the end, three have not yet been commissioned but are understood to have met all requirements. These are: Joseph C. Slaughter, Oscar Wright and Sam Torian, who went as a student from Kentucky University.

Of the seven given commissions two are among the five captains and five are second lieutenants.

Capt. Thos. G. Skinner, who heads the list, is a young attorney, a nephew of John C. Duffy assistant attorney general. He has lived in Hopkinsville only a few years but has made a place for himself as one of the city's most prominent young men, professionally and socially. He is a splendid type of physical development and his success is a reward for his unusual fitness.

Capt. Wm. T. Radford removed with his father, W. A. Radford, from Hopkinsville to Louisville last year. He served one year in West Point Military Academy when quite young and failed in the rigid examination at the end of the year. He then entered the Kentucky University and completed the course and as a non-commissioned officer of Co. D saw service on the border last winter. He was one of the first to volunteer for training camp work and was well advanced when he entered. He is a nephew of Col. Cyrus S. Radford, of the U. S. Marine Corps.

Lieut. Ellis J. Melton is a brother of E. S. Melton, manager of a sewing machine company and was engaged in business with his brother last May. When the camp opened he was not among those called but got on the train and went anyhow and was admitted. His pluck and aptness told from the start and many good reports have come of his work all along.

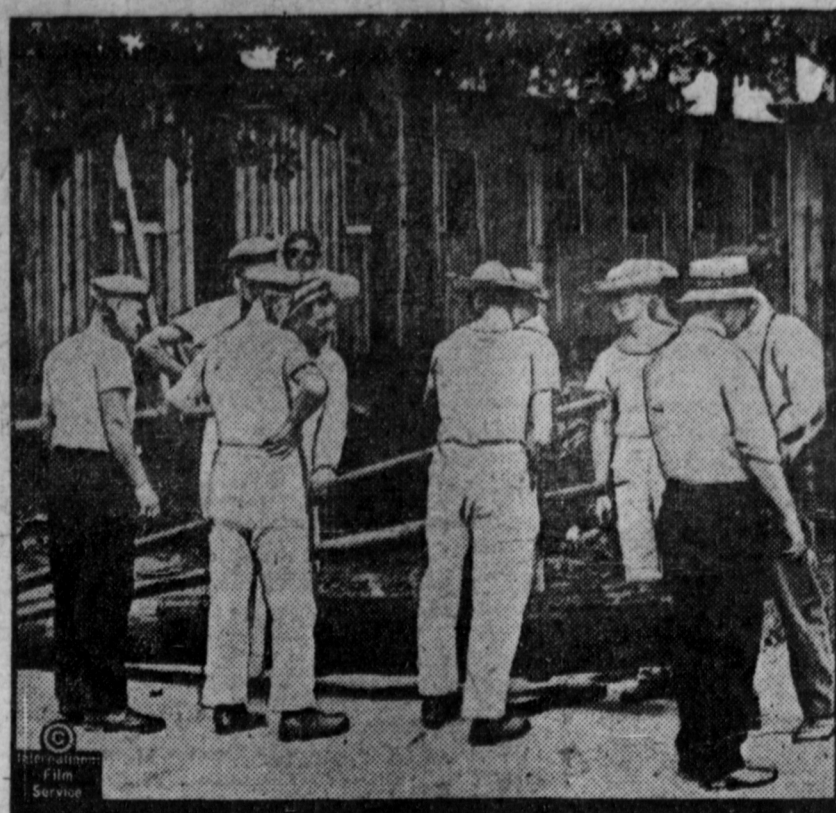

Lieut. Henry L. Bass is another of the young men who would not be passed over, but went in person and demanded admission and got it. He came to Hopkinsville when a child, being a son of O. C. Bass and a brother of Oscar Bass, of the jewelry firm of Blakey, Bass & Barnett. He is a fine young fellow and will make a gallant officer.

Lieut. Robt. L. Wright was a bookkeeper in one of the local banks and early offered his services and was called among the first. He made good from the start and his reward comes as a matter of justice for duties well performed. He is a son of C. O. Wright the real estate man.

Lieut. Herschel A. Long is a native of the city, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Long. He is a graduate of the Hopkinsville High School and of Central University at Danville. He taught one year in the local High School and then became cashier for the Forbes Manufacturing Co., which position he gave up to enter the service of his country. He is assigned to the quartermaster's department and is well equipped for any duties that may be given him.

Lieut. Harry W. Ware is a son of Jas. H. Ware and a grandson of Judge W. P. Winfree. He entered the training camp from the National Guard, in which he was a non-com-

These interned German prisoners, sailors from the cruiser Kronprinz Wilhelm, are helping to build new quarters near Fort McPherson, Ga., which, when completed, will house 2,500 Germans, most of them from the German ships interned in American ports.

WHITE WAY
ASSURED

Sixty-Three New Lights and Fixtures of the Most Modern Type.

FOR MAIN AND NINTH STS.

Business Men Contributed to Fund to Buy the Iron Posts.

The long expected supplies for the White Way have been received and the movement is no longer a matter of conjecture.

Some time ago a committee of business men canvassed Main and Ninth streets and signed up all the property owners to install the fixtures and the city agrees to furnish the current. The contract was then closed with the Kentucky Public Service company.

Now the iron posts and other equipment have arrived here and the work of installing the new lights will begin shortly. The heavy cable which will carry the current, is not yet here.

There will be 63 of the new lights and when they are in position the present swinging lights at the street intersections in that portion of the city lighted by the White Way will be removed.

The fixtures are the very latest and most approved type, the iron posts being ornamented and surmounted by a single large frosted glass globe enclosing the electric bulb. The wires carrying the current will be laid underground, removing overhead wiring altogether.

The lights will be placed on both sides of Main street from Fifth to Twelfth streets and on Ninth between the two depots. This will give Hopkinsville a splendidly lighted main business section.

The sweetness of revenge often sours the disposition.

Commissioned officer, upon his return from the border. At school he was an all-round athlete.

Hopkinsville has been signally honored by the selection of all of these young officers, who will reflect nothing but credit upon their city, their state and their country.

It is not out of place to add that these are only a part of the gallant young Hopkinsville boys in the service of their country as officers. Others are in various training schools of both the army and navy to say nothing of those transferred from the National Guard. Among these are the three Wilkerson brothers, the two Jarrett brothers, Jack Stites, Jack Tandy, Gilmer Bell, Joseph Kelly and many others whose names are not now recalled.

SEVEN OFFICERS
COMMISSIONED

From the Nine Hopkinsville Men at Ft. Benjamin Harrison.

CAMP CLOSES AUGUST 15

Secretary of War Baker to Visit Camp and Make Address of Importance.

Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., Aug. 10.—Washington dispatches to the effect that lists of men in the officers' training camp here receiving commissions would be announced Thursday and those affecting the Ohio and West Virginia men on Friday caused a stir of excitement.

It is estimated that 1000 men failing to receive commissions, are leaving the camp.

While definite figures were withheld it was believed that about 60 per cent will be given commissions.

Gen. Glenn will close the training camp August 15. It is expected by that time that every man who is to be commissioned will have learned his rank and will be ready for discharge from the training camp.

The men commissioned will be assigned to commands in the new national army organization that is scheduled to be formed about September 1. Major Richardson has planned to make the last few days of the training season interesting for the men.

The men called for the next camp will begin receiving notifications on August 10. The new camp opens on August 27 and will close November 26.

Seven Hopkinsville men are in the army list of the reserves corps as published:

CAPTAINS.

Thomas G. Skinner.

W. T. Radford.

SECOND LIEUTENANTS.

Elias J. Melton.

Robert L. Wright.

Henry L. Bass.

Herschel A. Long.

Harry Ware.

All are in the infantry section but Lieut. Long, who is in the quartermaster corps.

Secretary Baker has made all his plans to visit Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., this week to be present when the big training camp closes the last of the week.

It is his purpose to deliver the commissions to the new officers from Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia, who are about to be graduated from that training camp, and in doing so he will make an address which will be an utterance of national import.

TO GATHER DRAFT ARMY

Men Selected For Entraining Will Be Notified by Mail and Names Posted.

LEADERS WILL BE CHOSEN

These Will Be Commanders Until Group Reaches Gate of the Cantonment.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Regulations under which men of the new national army will be called to the colors beginning Sept. 1 were issued by Provost Marshal General Crowder.

Two hundred thousand of the first 687,000 men will be called up Sept. 1 and forwarded to their camp before Sept. 5. The whole business of assembling the levies at entraining points, providing them with shelter, food and transportation and giving them their actual induction into military life is entrusted to the civilian local boards which selected them for service. Until the men reach the camps they will not be in contact with uniformed officers. The civilian control is carried forward through every stage of the draft to the very gates of the military camps where the making of soldiers will begin, to be completed within sound of the guns in France.

The actual call for men will go in each case from the provost marshal general to the state adjutant general, stating the number of men to be supplied at the specified time by the state. Each local board will promptly informed of its proportion in the call and the adjutant general will fix the date when men from his state shall entrain for the camps.

Immediately the local board will make out the list of men to fill the call from the accepted men and it will also fix the place of entrainment and the exact time of departure.

Orders to the men will be posted and also be sent them by mail. They will be directed to report to the local board at its headquarters not less than twelve hours nor more than twenty-four hours before the time of departure for camp.

"From the time specified for reporting to the local board for military duty," the regulations state, "each man in respect of whom notice to report has been posted or mailed shall be in the military service of the United States."

For each district five alternates will be summoned to the board headquarters in addition to the men actually selected to fill the board quota. They will be held at the assembling point until time to fill in vacancies, should any of the levy fail to report.

Except for retreat roll call, the men will be given town liberty until 45 minutes before train time. The board will during this interval select one man from the levy whom it deems best qualified to command and place him in charge of the party for its trip. He will name a second in command to aid him and the other men will be told that the orders of these two must be obeyed under pain of military discipline.

The man in charge of the party will call the roll at the board headquarters just before train time. He will then line up the draft and, accompanied by the board members, march them to the station to entrain.

There a final verification of the list will be made and if any man of the selected number is missing, an alternate will be sent forward in his place. The tickets, with meal tickets and all papers relating to the party, including copies of registration cards, will be turned over to the man in command, and the party will start for its training camp.

It will be the duty of the commander of each party to watch over his men over the trip and see that none are left behind at any station, that all are fed regularly and that no liquor is furnished to the men en route.

After the departure of the levy for

BLAST WAY FOR THE BIG CHARGE

Allies' Giant Guns Leveling German Defenses On Flanders Front.

FRENCH MAKE TWO GAINS

Advance of Austro-German Troops In Galicia Checked by Korniloff's Fighters.

On none of the battle fronts of Europe has the fighting activity of the last twenty-four hours been marked. In Flanders, however, the great artillery battle continues to be most violent, seemingly preparing the way for further heavy infantry activity.

The only infantry engagements in Flanders have taken place on the line between Ypres and Dixmude, with the French troops the aggressors in both instances. Northwest of Bixshoote the French have enlarged further the gains made on Wednesday. Southwest of Bixshoote, in the region south of Langemarck, the French have made some progress in the German line.

Terrain conditions in Flanders, made more difficult by the rains of the last ten days, are such that without the destruction of enemy defenses by artillery fire, it is nearly useless to throw forward infantry attacks. There are indications that the Anglo-French guns of all calibers are engaged in leveling the German defense positions. The German general staff reports the artillery fire in Flanders as very great and says it has been especially heavy on the Belgian coast and from Bixshoote to Hollbeke. The latter sector takes in most of the important Ypres salient.

Except for several local raids by the French, there has been no infantry activity on the long line from St. Quentin to the Swiss border. The French and German guns, however, are hammering the opposing lines along the Aisne front in Champagne and on both banks of the Meuse in the Verdun region.

Apparently the Russians have checked the Austro-German advance in Galicia and Bukovina as no notable gains have been made by the Germans since the Russian line stiffened.

To the south in Moldavia the Russians and Rumanians are attempting to re-occupy the positions north of Fokshani lost to Field Marshal Mackensen's men. They have attacked the Austro-Germans with strong forces but Berlin says the effort failed.

The number of prisoners taken by the Teutons in this region is reported to have reached 3,300.

Brings Suit.

Mr. Charles J. Cronan filed suit Wednesday for $300,000 damages against the Louisville Herald Company and against John C. Schaffer, of Chicago, the owner of the publication, for alleged false and libelous editorials concerning Mr. Cronan during the last two weeks of the Mayoralty campaign in Louisville.

camp, the local boards will turn to gather up the stragglers. If there is evidence of wilful violation of orders the offender will be reported to the adjutant general of the army as a deserter and the local police will be asked to arrest him on sight and turn him over to the nearest army post for trial. Where there was no intention to desert, however, and the missing man reports of his own will, the board will send him on to the camp with an explanation and a recommendation to his degree of culpability.

Arrived at the camp, the party will undergo another physical examination by doctors. If any are rejected the local board will be notified and alternates sent forward for each case. The net quota of a board will be regarded as full only when the full number of men called for have been finally accepted.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

We are authorized to announce
JOHN W. RICHARDS
as a candidate for City Commissioner in the non-partisan primary election October 20, 1917.

Liberia, the negro republic, has declared war on Germany.

The Food Control Bill is now a law and it is up to Mr. Hoover to get busy.

In a contest between 16 candidates, S. B. Gott won for jailer of McCracken county by 15 votes.

The first detachment of 150 women sailors at Petrograd is forming, preparatory to going to the Murman coast.

Senator Wadsworth, of New York, introduced a bill providing that newspapers, magazines and periodicals may be sent to the Sammys in France free of postage.

Lieut. Col. E. B. Bassett is in charge of the military forces at Clay, Ky., and one of his first moves was to inaugurate a curfew order requiring the whole town to "turn in" at 9:30 a. m.

The Kentucky brigade is now at more than war strength, has been announced at headquarters. The excess will be organized into motorcycle and armored car companies if authority is given by the War Department.

The boyhood home of Eugene Field, the poet, in New Fane, Vt., was burned Wednesday. The house was built by Field's grandfather, Gen. Martin Field, and was one of the landmarks of that locality.

A man with his heart on his right side was discovered at South Bend, Ind., during the physical examinations of men for the selective draft. He is Fred Mummy, of River Park. Despite the abnormal position of the organ, it was pronounced normal by the physicians and Mummy passed the examination with flying colors.

Mrs. R. W. Bingham in her will left $5,000,000 to her husband, making him Kentucky's richest man. Her estate is $60,000,000 and the inheritance tax to be collected by Kentucky will be between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, depending entirely on how much of the vast estate is bequeathed to Mrs. Louise Wise Lewis, favorite niece of Mrs. Bingham. The inheritance tax to be paid to the United States will be in excess of $8,000,000.

Sells-Floto Circus to Give Two Performances Here
Aug. 13.

"I'll tell you the reason that any one of my three herds of elephants is the most intelligent bunch o' beasts in this whole menagerie, which includes about every known animal but the populist," said the boss animal man of the Sells-Floto circus, coming to Hopkinsville Sunday to exhibit Monday, Aug. 13. "The elephant has five toes like a man, that's why. Look at those ostriches over there. You know they are the prize 'nobody home' creatures of the universe, don't you? Want to know why? Well, they've only got two toes. Of course, my theory doesn't apply to the hoofed animals, but they are all babes in arms when compared to elephants in the matter o' wisdom."

At 10:30 a. m. the great street parade, with its five bands and five callopes, a parade that the circus men say has more of novelty and interest in each section than has been contained in the entire pageant of the big show before, will start on its glittering way thru down town thoroughfares. Two of the bands will journey in gold and silver bandwagons, two will sit astride the proudest of Sells-Floto horses, and the fifth, a large clown band will ride on cunning burros. A mounted corps of pretty girl buglers will attract the eye and stir the blood with martial fanfares, while tableau wagons and allegorical cars will be further distinguished by their loads of personal femininity, it is announced. Of course, there will be the cages of wild beasts in which will sit petite women trainers, and the clowns, the cavaliers and ladies, the huge hippo and the herds of elephants and camels. And throughout the long pageant, says the announcements, will be novelties galore.

The performances will be given at 2 p. m. and 8 p. m., and reserve seats may had all day at Anderson-Fowler's drug store at the same prices that will be charged at the ticket wagons on the show grounds.

The big show will alternate thrills with laughter this year, and big Russian, Japanese, Chinese, Arabian and southern European troupes will vie with American artists of air, rings and stage in electrifying the audiences with daring feats and amusing them with comedy feats no less daring but bound to win laughter. No one act or set of acts is termed a feature, but all are what is known as feature acts.

TERRIBLY SWOLLEN

Suffering Described As Torture
Relieved by Black-Draught.

Rossville, Ga.—Mrs. Kate Lee Able, of this place, writes: "My husband is an engineer, and once while lifting, he injured himself with a piece of heavy machinery, across the abdomen. He was so sore he could not bear to press on himself at all, on chest or abdomen. He weighed 165 lbs., and fell off until he weighed 110 lbs., in two weeks."

He became constipated and it looked like he would die. We had three different doctors, yet with all their medicine, his bowels failed to act. He would turn up a ten-cent bottle of castor oil, and drink it two or three days in succession. He did this yet without result. We became desperate, he suffered so. He was swollen terribly. He told me his suffering could only be described as torture."

I sent and bought Theodor's Black-Draught. I made him take a big dose, and when it began to act he fainted, he was in such misery, but he got relief and began to mend at once. He got well, and we both feel he owes his life to Theodor's Black-Draught."

Theodor's Black-Draught will help you to keep fit, ready for the day's work. Try it! NC-131

HONESTY THE BEST POLICY

So Thought Thrifty Individual Who Found Returning of "Lost"
Watches to Be Profitable.

In the "Lost and Found" column of certain newspapers there appeared an advertisement which read as follows: "Found—A gentleman's gold watch; picked up on the evening of the 13th inst., in the Strand. Owner can have same, by paying expenses of advertising, from Sandy McNab, 21 Swindlem street, London, B. C."

People who read the advertisement viewed it as a striking example of the upward trend of commercial morality in these days, and in a little office at 21 Swindlem street sat Sandy McNab glowing with conscious virtue, says a London news letter. To him presently was ushered Mr. Thomson.

"Vell," said Sandy, "vat can I do for you?"

"I—I have called," said Mr. Thomson, "with respect to my watch."

"Ah, you haf—eh?" (Experts agree that the Scottish accent is most difficult to eradicate.) "Vell, here vas the vatch, and dere vas 30 shillings to pay for advertisements."

Mr. Thomson's face grew longer, but he produced the 30 shillings and bore off the watch.

And when he had gone Sandy took another gold watch from his drawer and waited for the next Mr. Thomson. "Ah," he mused, "dis vatch finding vas good business."

THEN WENT ON

"When I was in New York I stopped at the best hotel there."

"Found it pretty expensive, didn't you?"

"No. I only stopped to admire it."

HAS EARNED A REST.

No. 397, which is the only name that a big horse on the tuberculosis farm at Otisville, N. Y., is known by, was turned out to pasture for a long rest. No. 397 has done his bit. According to New York's health commissioner, No. 397 was bought for $25. Since that time he has made $75,000 for the city. At Otisville they manufacture serums which are sold throughout the United States and Europe. Most horses die after a few months' service in serum production. But not No. 397. With but a few rests between, he has had eight quarts of blood drawn from him each week for the past four years. This blood has provided serum which has saved the lives of many thousands of children.

SOME IMPROVEMENT.

"Has your father had anything good to say of me since I have been coming to see you?"

"Oh, yes," replied Miss Peacher. "Only last night he said, 'Daughter, that new beaux of yours gives me much better cigars than the tightwad who used to hang around here.'"

WHAT IT COST.

The Cat—Nice muzzle you're wearing. Sport. Cost much?
The Dog (sadly)—About five bones a day!—Life.

MISLED CONFIDENCE.

"The Germans had no idea the British were so expert with the bayonet."
"Then they were stuck."

CURED.

"Lillian's health seems greatly improved."
"Yes. She heard that her doctor is to be married shortly."

QUITE THE CONTRARY.

"Are you going to get any Liberty bonds?"
"Not exactly; I am going to take out a marriage license."

Among the many monuments to General Sherman, the one situated in Calvary Cemetery, St. Louis, is a most unique, compelling design. The very character of its architecture seems to emphasize the faithful and honorable spirit of this old warrior.

The Secrets of the Hohenzollerns

STARTLING EXPOSURE OF INNER LIFE OF KAISER AND CROWN PRINCE AS TOLD BY COUNT ERNST VON HELTZENDORFF TO WILLIAM LEQUEUX

EDITORIAL NOTE.—William Lequeux, who here chronicles for his friend, Count Ernst von Helztendorff, the latter's revelations of the inner life of the Imperial German court, has long been recognized throughout Europe as the possessor of its innermost secrets.

The English "Who's Who" says of him: "He has intimate knowledge of the secret service of Continental countries and is considered by the government (of Great Britain) an authority on such matters." Another authority says: "Few people have been more closely associated with the know more of the astounding inner machinery of Germany than he."

Lequeux probably has more sources of secret information at his command than any contemporary in civil life, and for the last six years the British Government has made valuable use of his vast store of secret information through a specially organized department with which Lequeux works as a voluntary assistant.

Count von Helztendorff became an intimate of Lequeux several years prior to the outbreak of the war; he has been living in retirement in France since August, 1914, and it was there that Lequeux received from the crown prince's late personal adjutant permission to make public these revelations of the inner life of the Hohenzollerns—that the democracies of the world might come to know the real, but heretofore hidden, personalities of the two dominant members of the autocracy they are now arrayed against.

British Girl Balks The Kaiser's Plans

HOW completely we have put to sleep these very dear cousins of ours, the British! His imperial highness, the crown prince made this remark to me as he sat in the corner of a first-class compartment of an express that had ten minutes before left Paddington station for the West of England.

The crown prince, though not generally known, frequently visited England and Scotland incognito, and we were upon one of those flying visits on that bright summer's morning as the express tore through the delightful English scenery of the Thames valley, with the first stopping place at Plymouth, our destination.

The real reason for the visit of my young host-headed imperial master was concealed from me.

Four days before he had dashed into my room at the Marmor palace at Potsdam. He had been with the emperor in Berlin all the morning, and had motored back with all speed. Something had occurred but what it was I failed to discern. He carried some papers in the pocket of his military tunic. From their color I saw that they were secret reports—those documents prepared solely for the eyes of the kaiser and those of his oldest son.

He took a big linen-lined envelope and, placing the papers in it, carefully sealed it in wax.

"We are going to London, Helztendorff. Put that in your dispatch box. I may want it when we are in England."

"To London—when?" I asked, surprised at the suddenness of our journey, because I knew that we were due at Weimar in two days' time.

"We leave at six o'clock this evening," was the crown prince's reply. "Koehler has ordered the salon to be attached to the Hook of Holland train. Hardt has already left Berlin to engage rooms for us at the Ritz, in London."

"And the duties?" I asked, for it was one of my duties to arrange who traveled with his imperial highness.

"Oh! We'll leave Eckhardt at home," he said, for he always hated the surveillance of the commissioner of secret police. "We shall only want Schuler, my valet, and Knof."

We never traveled anywhere without Knof, the chauffeur, who was an impudent, arrogant young man, intensely disliked by everyone.

So it was that the four of us duly landed at Harwich and traveled to London, our identity unknown to the jostling crowd of tourists returning from their annual holiday on the continent.

At the Ritz, too, "Willie" was not recognized, because all photographs of him show him in an elegant uniform. In a tweed suit, or in evening clothes, he presents an unhealthy, weedy, and somewhat insignificant figure.

His imperial highness had been on the previous day to Carlton House terrace to a luncheon given by the ambassador's wife, but to which nobody was invited but the embassy staff.

That same evening an imperial courier arrived from Berlin and called at the Ritz, where, on being shown into the crown prince's sitting room, he handed his highness a sealed letter from his wife.

"Willie," on reading it, became very grave. Then, striking a match, he lit it, and held it until it was consumed. There was a second letter—which I saw from the emperor. This he also read, and then gave vent to an expression of impatience. For a few minutes he reflected, and it was then he announced that we must

On arrival there we went to the Royal hotel, where the crown prince registered as Mr. Richter, engaging a private suite of rooms for himself and his secretary, myself. For three days we remained there, taking motor runs to Dartmoor, and also down into Cornwall, until on the morning of the fourth day the crown prince said:

"I shall probably have a visitor this morning about eleven o'clock—a young lady named King. Tell them at the bureau to send her up to my sitting room."

At the time appointed the lady came. I received her in the lobby of the self-contained flat, and found her to be about twenty-four, well-dressed, fair-haired and extremely good-looking.

Miss King, I learned, was an English girl who some years previously had gone to America with her people, and by the heavy traveling coat and close-fitting hat she wore I concluded that she had just come off one of the incoming liners.

One thing which struck me as I looked at her was the brooch she wore. It was a natural butterfly of a rare tropical variety, with bright golden wings, the delicate sheen of which was protected by small plates of crystal—one of the most charming ornaments I had ever seen.

As I ushered her in she greeted the crown prince as "Mr. Richter," being apparently entirely unaware of his real identity. I concluded that she was somebody whom his highness had met in Germany, and to whom he had been introduced under his assumed name.

"Ah! Miss King!" he exclaimed pleasantly in his excellent English, shaking hands with her. "Your boat should have been in yesterday. I fear you encountered bad weather—eh?"

"Yes, rather," replied the girl. "But it did not trouble me much. We had almost constant gales ever since we left New York," she laughed brightly. She appeared to be quite a charming little person.

"Helztendorff, would you please bring me that sealed packet from your dispatch box?" he asked suddenly, turning to me.

The sealed packet! I had forgotten, all about it ever since he had handed it to me at the door of the Marmor palace. I knew that it contained some secret reports prepared for the eye of the emperor. The latter had no doubt seen them, for the crown prince had brought them with him from Berlin.

As ordered, I took the packet into the room where his highness sat with his fair visitor, and then I retired and closed the door.

"I can't; it would be dishonest!" Hotel doors are never very heavy, as a rule, therefore, I was able to hear conversation, but unfortunately few words were distinct. The interview had lasted nearly half an hour. Finding that I could hear nothing, I contented myself in reading the paper and holding myself in readiness should "Mr. Richter" want me.

Of a sudden I heard his highness' voice raised in anger, that shrill, high-pitched note which is peculiar both to the emperor and to his son when they are unusually annoyed.

"But I tell you, Miss King, there is no other way," I heard him shout. "It can be done quite easily, and nobody can possibly know."

"Never!" cried the girl. "What would people think of me?"

"You wish to save your brother," he said. "Very well, I have shown you how you can effect this. And I will help you if you agree to the terms—if you will find out what I want to know."

"I can't!" cried the girl in evident distress. "I really can't! It would be dishonest—criminal!"

"Bah! my dear girl, you are looking at the affair from far too high a standpoint," replied the man she knew as Richter. "It is a mere matter of business. You ask me to assist you to save your brother, and I have simply stated my terms. Surely you would not think that I would travel from Berlin here to Plymouth in order to meet you if I were not ready and eager to help you?"

"I must ask my father. I can speak to him in confidence."

"Your father!" cried Mr. Richter. "By no means. Why, you must not breathe a single word to him. This affair is a strict secret between us. Please understand that." Then, after a pause: "Your brother is, I quite admit, in direst peril, and you alone can save him. Now, what is your decision?"

The girl's reply was in a tone too low for me to overhear. Its tenor, however, was quickly apparent from the crown prince's words:

"You refuse! Very well, then, I cannot assist you. I regret, Miss King, that you have your journey to England for nothing."

"But won't you help me, Mr. Richter?" cried the girl appealingly.

"No," was his answer. "I will, however, give you opportunity to reconsider your decision. You are, no doubt, going to London. So am I. You will meet me in the hall of the

A LETTER FROM THE CROWN PRINCE'S PERSONAL ADJUTANT TO WILLIAM LEQUEUX, POSSESSOR OF THE SECRETS OF EUROPE.

Veneux Nadon,
par Moret-sur-Loing,
Seine-et-Marne,
February 10th, 1917.

My dear Lequeux:

I have just finished reading the proofs of your articles describing my life as an official at the Imperial court at Potsdam, and the two or three small errors you made I have duly corrected.

The gross scandals and wily intrigues which I have related to you were many of them known to yourself, for, as the intimate friend of Luise, the ex-crown princess of Saxony, you were, before the war, closely associated with many of those at court whose names appear in these articles.

The revelations which I have made, and which you have recorded here, are but a tithe of the disclosures which I could make, and if the world desires more, I shall be pleased to furnish you with other and even more startling details, which you may also put into print.

My service as personal adjutant to the German crown prince is, happily, at an end, and now, with the treachery of Germany against civilization glaringly revealed, I feel, in my retirement, no compunction in exposing all I know concerning the secrets of the kaiser and his son.

With most cordial greetings from
Your sincere friend, (Signed) ERNST VON HELTZENDORFF.

day evening, and we will dine together."

"But I can't—I really can't do as you wish. You surely will not compel me to—to commit a crime!"

The Crown Prince's Threat.

"Hush!" he cried. "I have shown you these papers, and you know my instructions. Remember that your father must know nothing. Nobody must suspect, or you will find yourself in equal peril with your brother."

"You—you are cruel!" sobbed the girl.

"No, no," he said cheerfully. "Don't cry, please. Think it all over, Miss King, and meet me in London on Thursday night."

After listening to the appointment, I discreetly withdrew into the corridor on pretense of summoning a waiter, and when I returned the pretty English girl was taking leave of "Mr. Richter."

Her blue eyes betrayed traces of emotion, and she was, I saw, very pale, her bearing quite unlike her attitude when she had entered there.

"Well, good-by, Miss King," said his highness, grasping her hand. "It was really awfully good of you to call. We shall meet again very soon—eh? Good-by."

Then, turning to me, he asked me to conduct her out.

On returning to the crown prince, I found him in a decidedly savage mood. He was pacing the floor impatiently, muttering angrily to himself, for it was apparent that some plan of his was being thwarted by the girl's refusal to conform to his wishes and obtain certain information he was seeking.

The crown prince, when in a foreign country, was never idle. His energy was such that he was ever on the move, with eyes and ears always open to learn whatever he could. Hence it was at two o'clock that afternoon Knof brought round a big gray open car, and in it I sat beside the emperor's son while we were driven around the defenses of Plymouth, just as on previous occasions we had inspected those of Portsmouth and of Dover.

On the following Thursday evening we had returned to London, and the crown prince, without telling me where he was going, left the Ritz hotel, merely explaining that he might not be back till midnight. It was on that occasion, my dear Lequeux, you will remember, that I dined with you at the Devonshire club, and we afterward spent a pleasant evening together at the Empire.

I merely told you that his highness was out at dinner with a friend. You were, naturally, inquisitive, but I did not satisfy your curiosity. Secrecy was then my duty.

A Sample of German Preparedness.

On returning to the hotel I found the crown prince arranging with Knof a motor run along the Surrey hills on the following day. He had a large map spread before him—a German military map, the curious marks upon which would have no doubt astonished any war office official. The map indicated certain spots which had been secretly prepared by Germany in view of the projected invasion.

To those spots we motored on the following day. His Imperial Highness, at the instigation of the emperor, actually made a tour of inspection of those cunningly concealed points of vantage which the Imperial general staff had, with their marvelous foresight and bold enterprise, already prepared right beneath the very nose of the sleeping British lion.

From the crown prince's jaunty manner and good spirits I felt assured that by the subtle persuasive powers he possessed towards women he had brought the mysterious Miss King into line with his own plans—whatever they might be.

We lunched at the Burford Bridge hotel, that pretty, old-fashioned house beneath Box hill, not far from Dorking.

After our meal in the long public room, we strolled into the grounds for a smoke.

"Well, Helztendorff," he said presently, "we will return in the continent tomorrow. Our visit has not been altogether abortive. We will remain a few days in Ostend, before we return to Potsdam."

Next afternoon we had taken up our quarters at a small but very select hotel on the Digue at Ostend, a place called the "Beau Séjour." It was patronized by old-fashioned folk, and "Herr Richter" was well known there. There may have been some who suspected that Richter was not the visitor's real name, but they were few, and it always surprised me how well the crown prince succeeded in preserving his incognito—though, of course, the authorities knew of the imperial visit.

The English Girl Again.

The following day, about three o'clock, while the crown prince was carelessly going through some letters brought by couriers from Potsdam, a waiter came to me with a message that a Miss King desired to see Mr. Richter.

In surprise I received her, welcoming her to Ostend. From the neat dress of the pretty English girl I concluded that she had just crossed from Dover, and she seemed most anxious to see his highness. I noted that she still wore the beautiful golden butterfly.

When I entered his room to announce her the crown prince's brow knit, and his thin lips compressed.

"Hm! More trouble for us, Helztendorff, I suppose! Very well, show her in."

The fair visitor was in the room for a long time—indeed, for over an hour. Their voices were raised, and now and then, curiously enough, I received the impression that, whatever might have been the argument, the pretty girl had gained her own point, for when she came out she smiled at me in triumph, and walked straight forth and down the stairs.

The crown prince threw himself into a big armchair in undisguised dissatisfaction. Towards me he never wore a mask, though, like his father, he invariably did so in the presence of strangers.

"Those accursed women!" he cried. "Ah, Helztendorff, when a woman is in love she will defy even Satan himself! And yet they are fools, these women, for they are in ignorance of the irresistible power of our Imperial house. The enemies of the Hohenzollerns are as a cloud of gnats on a summer's night. The dew comes, and they are no more. It is a pity. Has not one of our greatest German philosophers written: 'It is no use breathing against the wind'?"

"True," I said. "But, surely, it is a nuisance to be followed and worried by that little English girl!"

"Worried! Yes, you are quite right, my dear Helztendorff. But I do not mind worry, if it is in the interests of Prussia, and of our house of Hohenzollern. I admit the girl, though distinctly pretty, is a most irresponsible person. She does not appeal to me, but I am compelled to humor her, because I have a certain object in view."

I could not go further, or I might have betrayed the knowledge I had gained by eavesdropping.

"I was surprised that she should turn up here, in Ostend," I said.

"I had written to her. I expected her."

"She does not know your real rank or station?"

"No. To her I am merely Herr Emil Richter, whom she first met away in the country. She was a tourist, and I was Captain Emil Richter of the Prussian Guards. We met while you were away on a holiday at Vienna."

I was anxious to learn something about Miss King's brother, but "Willie" was generally discreet, and at that moment unusually so. One fact was plain, however, that some secret report presented to the emperor had been shown to her. Why? I wondered if his highness had been successful in coercing her into acting as he desired.

Certainly the girl's attitude as she had left the hotel went to show that, in the contest, she had won by her woman's keen wit and foresight.

A fortnight afterwards we were back again at Potsdam.

A Surprise Package for "Willie."

About three months passed. The crown prince had accompanied the emperor to Berlin on the Dignity (Gibson) that wild mountainous district beyond Breslau. For a week we had been staying at a great, high-up prisonlike schloss, the ancestral home of Prince Ludwig Lichtenau, in the Wolfelsgrund.

The emperor and his suite had left, and our host had been suddenly called to Berlin by telegram, his daughter having been ill. Therefore, the crown prince and we of the suite had remained for some further sport.

On the day after the emperor's departure I had spent the afternoon in a small paneled room which overlooked a deep mountain gorge, and which had been given up to me for work. I was busy with correspondence when the courier from Potsdam entered and gave me the battered leather pouch containing the crown prince's letters. Having unlocked it with my key, I found among the correspondence a small square packet addressed to his imperial highness, and marked "private."

"Now, fearing bombs or attempts by other means upon his son's life, the emperor had commanded me always to open packets addressed to him. This one, however, being marked 'private,' and, moreover, the inscription being in a feminine hand, I decided to await his highness' return."

When at last he came in, wet and muddy after a long day's sport, I showed him the packet. With a careless air he said: "Oh, open it, Helztendorff. Open all packets, whether marked private or not."

"I obeyed, and to my surprise found within the paper a small leather-covered jewel case, in which, reposing upon a bed of dark blue velvet, was the beautiful ornament which I had admired at the throat of the fair-haired British girl—the golden butterfly."

I handed it to his highness just as he was taking a cigarette from the box on a side table.

The sight of it electrified him. He held his breath, standing for a few seconds staring at it as though he were gazing upon some specter. His countenance was as white as paper.

"When did that arrive?" he managed to ask, in a hoarse voice, which showed how completely sight of it had upset him.

"This afternoon. It was in the courier's pouch from Potsdam."

"If the Truth Came Out."

He seemed highly nervous, and at the same time extremely puzzled. Receipt of that unique and beautiful brooch was, I saw, some sign, but of its real significance I remained in entire ignorance.

That it had a serious meaning I quickly realized, for within half an hour the crown prince and myself were in the train on our 200-mile journey back to Berlin.

On arrival his imperial highness drove straight to the Berlin Schloss, and there had a long interview with the emperor. At last I was called into the familiar pale-green room, the kaiser's private cabinet, and at once saw that something untoward had occurred.

The emperor's face was dark and thoughtful. The crown prince, in his badly creased uniform betraying a long journey—so unlike his usual spick-and-span appearance, stood nervously by as the kaiser threw himself into his writing chair with a deep grunt and distinctly evil grace.

"I suppose it must be done," he growled to his son. "Did I not foresee that the girl would constitute a serious menace? When she was in Germany she might easily have been arrested upon some charge and her mouth closed. Bah! our political police service grows worse and worse. We will have it entirely reorganized. The director, Laubach, is far too sentimental, far too chicken-hearted."

As he spoke he took up his pen and commenced to write rapidly, drawing a deep breath as his quill scratched upon the paper.

"You realize," he exclaimed angrily to his son, taking no notice of my presence there, because I was part and parcel of the great machinery of the court, "you realize what this order means? It is a blow struck against our cause—struck by a mere slip of a girl. Think, if the truth came out! Why, all our propaganda in the United States and Britain would be nullified in a single day, and the 'good relations' we are now extending on every hand throughout the world in order to mislead our enemies would be exposed in all their true meaning. We cannot afford that. It would be far cheaper to pay twenty million marks—the annual cost of the whole propaganda in America—than to allow the truth to be known."

Suddenly the crown prince's face brightened, as though he had had some inspiration.

"The truth will not be known, I promise you," he said, with a strange grin. I knew that expression. It meant that he had devised some fresh plan. "The girl is defiant today, but she will not remain so long. I will take your order, but I may not have

"Ah! You have perhaps devised something—eh? I hope so," said the emperor. "You are usually ingenious in a crisis. Good! Here is the order; act just as you think fit."

"I was summoned, your majesty," I said, in order to remind him of my presence there.

"Ah! Yes. You know this Miss King, do you not?"

"I received her in Plymouth," was my reply.

"Ah! then you will recognize her. Probably your services may be very urgently required within the next few hours. You may go," and his majesty curtly dismissed me.

I waited in the corridor until his imperial highness came forth. When he did so he looked flushed and seemed agitated. There had, I knew, occurred a violent scene between father and son, for to me it seemed as though "Willie" had again fallen beneath the influence of a pretty face.

He drove me in a big Mercedes over to Potsdam where I had a quantity of military documents awaiting attention, and after a change of clothes, I tackled them.

Yet my mind kept constantly reverting to the mystery surrounding the golden butterfly.

A Note From Miss King.

After dinner that night I returned to my workroom, when, upon my blotting-pad, I found a note addressed to me in the crown prince's sprawling hand.

Opening it, I found that he had scribbled this message:

"I have left. Tell Eckhardt not to trouble. Come alone, and meet me tomorrow night at the Palast hotel, in Hamburg. I shall call at seven o'clock and ask for Herr Richter. I shall also use that name. Tell nobody of my journey, not even the crown princess—Wilhelm, Kronprinz."

I read the note through a second time, and then burned it.

Next day I arrived at the Palast hotel, facing the Binnenalster, in Hamburg, giving my name as Herr Richter.

At seven o'clock I awaited his highness. Eight o'clock came—nine—ten—even eleven—midnight, but, though I sat in the private room I had engaged, no visitor arrived.

Just after twelve, however, a waiter brought up a note addressed to Herr Richter.

Believing it to be meant for me, I opened it. To my great surprise, I found that it was from the mysterious Miss King, and evidently intended for the crown prince. It read:

"My brother was released from the Altona prison this evening—I presume, owing to your intervention—and we are now both safely on our way across to Harwich. You have evidently discovered at last that I am not the helpless girl you believed me to be. When your German police arrested my brother Walter in Bremen as a spy of Britain I think you will admit that they acted very injudiciously, in face of all that my brother and myself know today. At Plymouth you demanded, as the price of Walter's liberty, that I should become attached to your secret service in America and betray the man who adopted me and brought me up as his own daughter. But you never dreamed the extent of my knowledge of your country's intrigues; you did not know that, through my brother and the man who adopted me as his daughter, I know the full extent of your subtle propaganda. You were, I admit, extremely clever, Herr Richter, and I confess that I was quite charmed when you sent me, as souvenir, that golden butterfly which I returned to you as a mark of my refusal and defiance of the conditions you imposed upon me for the release of my brother from the sentence of fifteen years in a fortress. This time, Herr Richter, a woman wins. Further, I warn you that if you attempt any reprisal my brother will at once expose Germany's machinations abroad. He has, I assure you, many good friends, both in Britain and America. Therefore if you desire silence you will make no effort to trace me further. Adieu!"

Twelve hours later I handed that letter to the crown prince in Potsdam. Where he had been in the meantime I did not know. He read it through; then he crushed it in his hands and tossed it into the fire.

Navy Older Than Government.

The United States navy has the distinction of being somewhat older than the government itself, for nine months before the actual Declaration of Independence congress authorized the construction of two "national" cruisers and appointed a committee to purchase vessels to form the nucleus of a fleet.

Within three months of its appointment this committee got together 14 armed vessels and appointed a personnel of officers, among whom was the famous old sea dog, Paul Jones. During the war of the revolution the infant navy captured as many as 800 prizes, but suffered so heavily that by the time peace was declared it had almost ceased to exist. A new start on a more ambitious scale was made in

CUT IN COAL IS PREDICTED

Federal Trade Commission Is Ready to Make Price
Scale on Short Notice.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Sharp reduction of coal costs was predicted by officials tonight, as a result of the Senate's passage of the Food Control Bill, carrying a provision for Government fixing of fuel prices.

The Federal Trade Commission, which the measure authorizes the President to designate as an agency to enforce the provision, is ready to make out a price scale at short notice. For months the commission has gathered facts as to production costs and in a recent report to Congress pointed out that prices are too high. Bituminous prices to the general public were fixed at $3 in a recent agreement between producers, members of the commission and other Government officials. This price was to hold until a final price was determined on. Investigation has convinced members of the commission that this price is too high and that coal can be sold at a much lower figure and still leave a handsome profit for the producer.

President Wilson probably will issue an executive order at the time he signs the bill, authorizing the commission to proceed with price-fixing.

Baker to Speak.

The presentation of commissions to the first officers to be graduated from the officers' training camps into the new army will be quite a ceremonious occasion, if Secretary of War Baker is able to carry out a plan he has on foot. The Secretary has made all his plans to go to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., to be present when the big training camp there closes the last day of the week. It is his purpose to deliver the commissions to the new officers from Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia, who are about to be graduated from that training camp, and in doing so he will make an address which will be an utterance of national import.

Miss Bettie Guynn, Died of Paralytic Stroke at The Ripe Age of 78 Years.

Miss Bettie Guynn, who was paralyzed a few days before, died Wednesday afternoon about four o'clock at her home on South Main street.

Miss Guynn was seventy-eight years of age and a daughter of the late Robert Guynn, a prominent and pioneer Christian county citizen. She was born in this county and all her long and useful life had been spent here. She was a consecrated member of the Ninth street Christian church.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. E. C. Cayce and Mrs. T. M. Jones, and one brother, Robert Guynn.

Funeral services were held at four o'clock Thursday afternoon at the Ninth street Christian church, and the remains were interred in Riverside cemetery.

She was widely known and highly esteemed for her Christian usefulness in the community.

THE JARRETT BOYS.

Chas. P. Jarrett, a Hopkinsville boy who has been traveling for Peasley-Gaulbert Co., for several years, has given up a three years' contract at $2,500 a year to enter the army in Texas. He was made quartermaster sergeant in a state company but found that too tame and has secured a transfer to the regular army about to sail for France. He has probably set sail by this time. His brother, H. K. Jarrett, is now at Fort Sam Houston, but he too will try to get transferred and follow the "Sammies."

IRREPARABLY DAMAGED

Drouth and Hot Winds Have Ruined Grain, Says State Report.

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 10.—The corn crop in Western Kansas has been irreparably damaged by drouth, and recent rains will only benefit it for use as fodder, according to a weekly summary of crop conditions issued today by the section center of the Weather Bureau.

In the eastern part of the State the crop has been benefited by recent rains, but the yield there for the most part has been damaged beyond recovery by hot winds and dry weather.

Nearing Completion.

Hattiesburg, Miss., Aug. 10.—Work on Camp Shelby, at Hattiesburg, where 30,000 national guardsmen from West Virginia, Indiana and Kentucky will take up extensive training before leaving for Europe, is nearing completion. Three thousand workmen are employed and practically all the material needed for the construction of the camp is on the ground.

Jim Came Back.

Jim Higgins, a negro, who had been given up as dead and mourned by his relatives, arrived at Clay, Ky., on the train from Evansville and, like Mark Twain, he said the account of his death had been exaggerated. Higgins was one of the injured miners removed to Evansville whose identity was not established until he put in an appearance.

To Place Goebel Plate.

The old brick walk that has been in front of the Old State Capitol at Frankfort, 17 years, is being taken up and a concrete walk is being laid. The marble block, marking the place where William Goebel fell, when he was assassinated, will give way to a bronze plate set in the concrete, inscribed with the statement that it marks the place where he fell.

Quick Death.

Spencer Bertram, of Forbes, Tenn., employed by the Wood Oil Company, at Irvine, Ky., went to the top of an oil tank carrying a lantern. The tank exploded, killing him instantly.

Hopeful of Russia.

Elihu Root and his fellow members of the American Mission sent to Russia three months ago, informed President Wilson in Washington that the newest of democracies grows stronger of heart and purpose daily, and with the proper encouragement from the United States can be depended upon to do her part in the great war and emerge a powerful State.

HINDU PRINCE RHAM SINGH

Arrested In Louisville and is Now Spending His Time
In Jail As a Slacker.

Prince Rham Singh, whose American name is Wm. Derrick, was arrested in Louisville Thursday and sent to jail in default of $500 bond and his trial set for August 20, on a charge of failing to register, pending an investigation to determine whether he is an alien enemy.

Singh claims to be a Hindu prince, the son of Raja Singh, of India, and that he left his home after his conversion to the Baptist faith by Dr. W. B. Porter, of the United States Baptist Missionary Board, eleven years ago.

He says that he is 33 years old and is well known to the British consul at Norfolk and that he has no funds except what is given him through collections in various churches and schools throughout the country where he has given lectures. It is his wish, he says, to work his way to San Francisco to locate Hindu friends and get back to England to fight under British colors. He claims to be a British subject. He also said that he would be proud to fight for the United States and would enlist if the government wished him to do so, but that he was over draft age.

He was in Hopkinsville some weeks ago and lectured at the High School and at one of the churches.

PURELY PERSONAL.

Mrs. Charles Pickford, of Tacoma, Wash., is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. J. A. Barbee has returned to Guthrie, after spending ten days here with her husband. During her visit, she and Mr. Barbee attended the association at Crofton and spent a day or two at Cereulean.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Brown are spending the week-end at Dawson.

Misses Imogene and Dorothy Bartley, who had been visiting in Clarksburg during the past week, returned home yesterday.

Mrs. Eliza Porter, of Pembroke, has returned home after a visit to her aunt, Mrs. W. H. Hall.

Ellis McKee, of Jonesboro, Ark., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. McKee.

Mrs. M. P. G. Hillman, of Birmingham, Ala., is visiting relatives in the city.

W. C. Bell, of Indianapolis, is in the city.

Red Cross Sewing Room.

P. W. Stevenson has placed the waiting room of the Louisville & Nashville railroad at Gracey at the disposal of the women interested in sewing for the Red Cross. The local branch of the Christian County Chapter of the American Red Cross was organized a month ago. It has nearly 100 members and expects to have 150 within a short time.

We are waiting on Mr. Hoover.

Melons On Market.

Home-grown watermelons made their first appearance in the streets here Thursday. They sold readily at from 25 to 50 cents apiece. The melons were nice ones, but the crop does not promise to be a very large one.

THE CONSUMER
MISCALCULATES

Often Pays More For Catalogue House Goods.

ONE FARMER'S EXPERIENCE.

Influenced by an Alluring Picture Book
For a Time—Yards of Red Tape
Used—Buying From a Picture Album
Is a Reckless Form of Gambling.
See the Goods Before Purchase.

[Copyrighted, 1914, by Thomas J. Sullivan.] Figures do not always indicate the price of goods sold by mail order houses as scheduled in their price lists,
as the catalogue houses are careful not to mention the "extra" cost incidental to placing the order and the delivery of the article ordered.

The consumer is governed by the low catalogue price rather than the delivery cost, the latter means, of course, being the correct way of determining the cost of the article.

Consumer Buys Costly Saw.
As an example I reproduce herewith a conversation which recently took place in a western town when a consumer entered the local store and inquired the price of a saw. The price of the saw was $2, the merchant told him.

"Great guns!" declared the consumer. "I can get the same article from a catalogue house for $1.50."
"I can't buy it for that price," said
the merchant, "but I will give it to you on the same terms as the mail order house, just the same."

"All right," replied the consumer.
"You can wrap it up and charge it to me, and when I settle in the fall I will pay for it."

"Hand Over the Cash."
"Oh, no, you don't," said the dealer.
"We are doing business on the same terms as you do business with the mail order house—no charge accounts. Hand over the cash, please."

The consumer handed over $1.50.
"Now," said the merchant, "5 cents for postage."

"What the?"
"But you must send a letter and a money order to the catalogue house in order to get the saw, you know."

The consumer, although desiring to buy, kept bravely to his agreement and paid the 7 cents.

"Now the express charges, 45 cents,
if you please."
"Well, by gracious!" he said and gamely paid it, with the remark, "Now that I have met all of your demands hand me over my saw."

Man Made Mistake.
"Hand you the saw! Why, man,
where do you think you are? Just recollect that you are in Texas and I am located in Chicago. You will have to wait about fifteen days for me to make the delivery." And, backing up his words with actions, he pocketed the money, put the saw back on the shelf and smilingly turned to wait on the next customer.

The consumer pondered, and after he got through with his deductions he said: "The saw will cost me $2.03.
That is 3 cents more than I could have bought it for in the first place, and I am deprived of its use for fifteen days besides. No more mail order house for me!"

Incident Worthy of Emulation.
The incident related above is one which both the merchant and the consumer may read with profit, and if more of the merchants adopted the same tactics as did the Texas merchant they would have fewer mail order buyers among those who should be their customers.

And there is much more to this question than price and delivery; there are often dissatisfaction and inferior and damaged goods to contend with. In the case of goods being damaged en route the buyer has either the prospect of a lawsuit with the railroad company or a correspondence fight with the catalogue house, neither of which is very inviting.

Not infrequently does the buyer,
rather than to go to all the expense
and trouble incidental to the exchange of the article, allow himself to be imposed upon by accepting the inferior and often valueless article, an article which he is actually ashamed to own or use.

The Only Safe Way.
There can be but one right way to buy goods, and that is to have the goods in view of the purchaser. Buying from a picture is a reckless form of gambling in which the advantage is entirely with the seller. He knows what your money is. You do not know what his goods are. Hence it is heads
he wins and tails you lose.

That the catalogue house always gets the better of the bargain is evidenced by the fact that annually the large mail order houses declare dividends
the enormity of which appalls and be-wilders the conception of ordinary individuals, who count their profits and savings in pennies rather than in millions.

There is but one right way to buy goods, and that way is to see what you buy before you pay for it.

TRIGG COUNTY.

Noble Morse, son of E. C. Morse, of this city, and who has been in charge of the office of the Cumberland Telephone Co. at Gracy for several months, has been transferred to Trenton, and assumed his new position Tuesday. Noble was drawn for draft service in the first call in Christian county, but was rejected on account of physical disabilities.

Ben Richardson, son of Rev. James Richardson, of Salem, recently joined the United States Navy, and is now on the Battleship Wyoming. He is a nephew of Mr. John J. Jefferson, Mrs.
W. P. Burrow and Mrs. H. H. Garton, of this city.

Dr. J. W. Crenshaw received a telegram Tuesday morning from Dr. J.
H. Morris stating that he had received notice of his acceptance as army surgeon at Washington, and that his commission would be promptly forwarded. He will soon be ordered into service.

Dr. L. Champion, a former Trigg county physician who now resides at Morton's Gap, has been commissioned a first Lieutenant in the medical service of the Army and will go to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in a short time to report for duty. He and Mrs.
Champion reached Cadiz Friday, and Mrs. Champion will be here indefinitely with her parents, Mr. and Mrs.
Levi Cunningham. Dr. Champion returned to Morton's Gap Monday.

Mr. Taft Worse.

WILLIAM H. TAFT.

Clay Center, Kas., Aug. 10.—The condition last night of former President William H. Taft was announced by the attending physician as not so good. While he did not consider the illness dangerous the physician considered quiet best and forbade all admittance to callers.

Because of the unfavorable turn in
Mr. Taft's condition, all of the speaking engagements until August 13 have been canceled.

This was the first day since Mr.
Taft was stricken with intestinal indigestion that the physician's report has been unfavorable.

Real Stuff.

Wabash, Ind., Aug. 10.—"I think I can serve my God and my country on the battlefields of Europe better than
in a pulpit here," declared the Rev.
Fred R. Hill, Methodist pastor, when he passed the physical examination
before the conscription board today.
"I do not want any exemption," he said.

DESTROYED, IS INTIMATION

MacNamara Refuses to Give British Parliament Definite Statement.

London, Aug. 10.—Answering a question to-day in the House of Commons put by Robert P. Houston, Unionist, for information regarding the German raider Wolf, in the Indian Ocean, and the raiders Seeadler, Moewe, Vineta, Puyne and others, in the Atlantic, Thomas J. MacNamara, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admirality, said the British Admiralty was
"not without knowledge of the movements or fate of these vessels."

Mr. MacNamara emphasized the word "fate," but said it was obvious that to disclose what was known or unknown would be valuable to the enemy. It was not considered in the public interest, therefore, to reply more fully.

MARRIAGES.

Pollard-Delk.

Ollie Pollard, of this city, and Miss Ethel Delk, of Russellville, were married Wednesday afternoon at the home of the groom's mother, on East 19th street.

Stewart-Morris.

A marriage license has been issued to Oma H. Stewart and Miss Eula Lee Morris, young people residing near Cerulean. The wedding is scheduled for Aug. 12.

Cavanaugh-Klinkroth.

Announcements have been received of the marriage of Mr. William B.
Cavanaugh, formerly of this county,
but now of Clarksdale, Arizona, to Miss Frances B. Klinkroth, of Alhambra, Calif., which occurred Aug. 1.
The groom is a son of Mr. M. M.
Cavanaugh, of Sinking Fork, and a brother of Mrs. C. E. Smith, of the Gracey neighborhood. He is a splendid young man and his bride much here wish him and his bride much happiness and prosperity. They will make their home at Clarksdale.

German Methods.

Commissioner Root found in Russia anti-American propagandists, who were headed by former residents of this country and now financed by German money, seeking to paint Americans in the blackest shade and thus discourage Russians from accepting their good offices. The story of the origin of this extraordinary propaganda is vouched for by every member of the commission.

Shortly after the outbreak of the war, it is declared, the propagandists, composed chiefly of socialists favorable to abolishing all present forms of government and establishing without delay rule by the brotherhood of man, returned to their native land began berating the United States and its people. Germans quick to see the advantage of controlling these agitators, began supplying them with money and today, flush with wealth,
they are going through Russia spreading the most vicious canards.

While the propagandists' efforts are being discounted, now that Russia is better organized, they have installed dangerous seeds in the simple minds of many Russians.

Go To Madisonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton Craig have gone to Madisonville to make their home. Mrs. Craig, formerly Miss Marguerite Lawson, is an accomplished musician who was for some time connected with the Princess Theatre. She has recently been organist for Westminster Church. Her place will be difficult to fill in the musical circles of the city and her talents are sure to be recognized in her new home.

Case of Hold-Up.

The Bureau of Markets reports that the advance in the price of glass jars is unjustified.

Representatives of the glass jar
manufacturers stated, in a conference held at the department on July 17,
that there is no shortage in glass jars.
One declared:

"We have not received enough orders to take care of our daily capacity, and have even offered to sell jobbers on consignment, to be paid for as sold."

After Speakership.

Owensboro, Ky., Aug. 10.—R. E.
Watkins, who received the Democratic nomination in the primary for Representative from Owensboro, announced to-day that in the event of his election he would be a candidate for Speaker of the House of Representatives at the next session of the Legislature.

Total of 51.

By the finding of seven additional bodies in the mine of the West Kentucky Coal Company at Clay Wednesday, the list of known dead as the result of the explosion last Saturday has been increased to fifty-one. The bodies brought out Wednesday were those of negroes. Fifteen more are believed to be in the mine.

Some men, like bricks, are always hard pressed for cash.

To Regulate Speculation.

The War Industries Board, in announcing its policy Wednesday said that the Allies would be given the benefit of the prices obtained in America by the United States Government and that every effort would be made to maintain the same level of prices to the general public.

WOULD SWELL VOTERS' LIST

Japanese Ballot Holders Now Number
Only 1,500,000 Out of Total Population of 60,000,000.

In the Japanese nation of 60,000,000 people there are only 1,500,000 voters, or 28 voters in each 1,000! Newspapers of the large cities charge with apathy many citizens possessed of the franchise. They insist that property qualification be further lowered, in order that a greater number of the people will become interested in the selection of members of parliament. From the Japan Year Book some interesting figures are obtainable, says East and West.

In 1890, with 300 seats in parliament to be filled, there were 553,474 voters; in 1903, with the same number of seats, 951,860; in 1908, when suffrage was extended to the large northern island, Hokkaido, and the number of seats was increased to 379, there were 1,582,676 people entitled to vote. That was high water mark up to this year, when the record vote of 1908 is likely to be exceeded. The increase of ballot holders in 1903 was due to the lowering of the property qualification. On the other hand, the year 1908 marked the close of a period of remarkable industrial and commercial activity. The prosperity Japan now enjoys far exceeds that of the period mentioned, and a similar swelling of the voters' lists is highly probable.

"UTOPIAN DREAM" CAME TRUE

Reclamation of Desert, Thought Impossible by Senator Hoar, Has Been Accomplished.

It is recorded of George F. Hoar of Massachusetts that when a final vote was taken in the United States senate, of which he was then a member, he entered a protest against the reclamation law, in reply to the argument that the public investment would yield large returns, by saying: "It may be true, but I don't believe it. You talk about making the desert blossom like a rose. It sounds fine, but I believe it to be a Utopian dream."

The reclamation record of a recent date gave the value of the crops produced in the Salt river valley project alone at $8,500,000, or an average of $50 an acre on the 173,000 acres watered by the government, and this does not include the value of orchards planted and maturing but not yet bearing, says the Christian Science Monitor. The Salt river valley is only one of the many oases in the desert that have appeared since Senator Hoar protested.

MESOPOTAMIA A CORN LAND.

The promise that Mesopotamia shall produce corn for us in abundance ought to be fulfilled, for of old it was a land of plenty. Climate, soil, and, above all, the system of canals by which from time immemorial it was irrigated, made it abnormally productive. Herodotus, fearing that his account would be deemed fabulous if he entered into particulars, contented himself with saying that millet and sesame there grew to the size of trees. Other accounts tell of wheat leaves and barley leaves four inches broad, and that in good years the land yielded in corn 300 times the amount it received as seed.—London Chronicle.

Produce Infertile Eggs!

Infertile Eggs Keep Best and Market Best in Summer Heat Fertile Eggs Spoil Quickly in Summer Weather

FERTILE EGGS COST THE FARMER AN ENORMOUS SUM EACH YEAR

Farmers lose millions of dollars annually from bad methods of producing and handling eggs. One-third of this loss is preventable, because it is due to the partial hatching of fertile eggs which have been allowed to become warm enough to begin to incubate.

The rooster makes the egg fertile

The fertile egg makes the blood ring

You can save the money now lost from blood rings by keeping the male bird from your flock after the hatching season is over.

The rooster does not help the hens to lay. He merely fertilizes the germ of the egg. The fertile germ in hot weather quickly becomes a blood ring, which spoils the egg for food and market. Summer heat has the same effect on fertile eggs as the hen or incubator.

INFERTILE EGGS WILL NOT BECOME BLOOD RINGS

After the hatching season cook, sell or pen your rooster. Your hens not running with a male bird will produce infertile eggs—quality eggs that keep best and market best.

Rules for Handling Eggs on the Farm—

Heat is the great enemy of eggs, both fertile and infertile. Farmers are urged to follow these simple rules, which cost nothing but time and thought and will add dollars to the poultry yard returns:

1. Keep the nests clean; provide one nest for every four hens.
2. Gather the eggs twice daily
3. Keep the eggs in a cool, dry room or cellar.
4. Market the eggs at least twice a week.
5. Sell, kill, or confine all male birds as soon as the hatching season is over.

NOTICE Valuable published information on the raising and care of poultry and eggs and individual advice on these subjects may be obtained by writing to the Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

"A FEW THINGS ABOUT SILOS"

A silo is a sure sign of thrift.

Only the best farmers build them.

They save 40 per cent. of a corn crop.

Corn is now worth $9.00 per barrel.

The stalks that produce a barrel of corn today are worth $3.60 if put into a silo.

When you allow these stalks to dry up on the hill for fodder you lose about $3.00 for every barrel of corn you produce.

You can't afford this awful waste.

If you raise a $3.00 barrel corn crop you throw away $900.00 by not converting it the stalk insilage.

It behooves every man in every business to save everything in times like these. The opposite course is not only foolish but wicked, for the world's food and feed supply is wholly inadequate.

We offer first class silos with plain lugs as follows:

10 ft. diameter, 24 ft. high$145.00
12 ft. " 30 ft. high 205.00

We offer 5 per cent. off for cash.

SMILES WORTH MORE TODAY

May Help to Lift the Burden That Someone is Carrying in These Troubled Times of War.

We are living now, in a troubled time. War is with us—war that brings the fear and pain of parting and giving and renouncing. And it isn't as easy to smile as it has been. And for just that reason, every smile that we give means a hundred times as much as it formerly did.

And so I'm going to ask you, friends of mine, to try to bring one smile a day to some soul who, maybe, hasn't the courage to smile, says a writer in the Christian Herald. You needn't limit yourself to one smile—if you can make ten, twenty, fifty people smile, so much the better. But be sure, at least, of that one smile!

A little old lady didn't know that she was making the way possible for a genius—that she was bringing a gift of God out of obscurity into the light. But that's what she did when she made the writer-girl's work worth while.

We don't know, any more than the little old lady did, when we give our smiles, just how much good we may be doing. Sometimes a smile, given at the right time, is worth almost as much as a word of understanding, or a loving hand, or a bit of helpful advice. And sometimes the smile that isn't given may be the weight of lead to help crush someone.

A little girl in the subway disappeared into the crowd before I could show her that I wanted to be friendly. Don't let your opportunities to bring cheer disappear, as she did, into oblivion.

HONORING FARM HEROES.

While we are about it, and while we are praising the farmer as the savior of the nation and a valiant factor in the war—if he is all these nice things; if his labor is so important an essential, and if he is indeed a soldier of the nation, why not decorate the farmer who does distinguished service in the furrows with the honor he deserves.

In 15 years the farmer has raised the average crop per acre from 15 to more than 50 bushels. He can do better even than that. Some few states now honor these heroes of the farm. Why should not our department of agriculture in Washington institute this year a great national farming contest?—Utica Globe.

FOOD BILL PASSES 66-7

Law Prohibiting Distilling
Will Be In Effect One Month From Today.

NOW FOR PROMPT ACTION

Hoover as Food Administrator
Will Quickly Curb
The Trusts.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The food bill passed through the last stage of legislative enactment at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when it was finally adopted by the senate in form previously approved by the house. President Wilson's signature now makes it a law. The vote was sixty-six to seven.

Those voting against the conference report were:

Democrats: Hardwick, Hollis and Reed.

Republicans: France, Gronna, LaFollette and Penrose.

Immediately after the final vote on the control bill, the Senate by a viva voce vote also approved the conference report on the first administration food bill, providing for a food survey and appropriation to stimulate production.

Both bills are to become law today with President Wilson's approval.

Prompt appointment of Herbert Hoover as food administrator and immediate operation under the legislation is expected to follow. In addition to its comprehensive provisions for food, fuel, fertilizer and farm equipment the control bill carried drastic prohibition features. Thirty days after its approval it will be unlawful to use foodstuffs in the manufacture of distilled beverages or to import distilled spirits for beverage purposes; and the president will be empowered to commandeer for military purposes distilled liquors now held in bond and to regulate or restrict the use of foods in the manufacture of wine and beer.

HOW CANNING PAID FOR HOME

Ruth Anderson, Fourteen-Year-Old Girl, Sets Others An Example.

Washington, August 10.—When 14-year-old Ruth Anderson, of Etowah county, Ala., told the carpenter she would swap vegetables from the garden for improvements to her home, he laughed and said, "How many beans will it take to build a house?"

But Ruth did not laugh—she meant business.

Here is the story as told by the United States Department of Agriculture:

Ruth was the second girl in a family of eleven, and their house was small and crowded. It was dark too, for lack of glass in the windows, and her greatest desire in life was to have a pretty, attractive home with a porch and plenty of light and space.

Ruth told the carpenter that she was not offering merely an occasional mess of beans, tomatoes or roasting ears of corn, but could trade in a considerable quantity of canned vegetables. She had a canning outfit and had learned the right way to use it by getting into the canning club which had been established in the county by the department of agriculture's home demonstration agent. The carpenter saw that Ruth was in earnest and agreed to begin remodeling the house in return for a supply of fresh and canned vegetables.

Ruth went to work with a will to keep her part of the bargain. In one year she put up 700 cans of tomatoes and 750 cans of beans. She became so expert that she won a canning prize which was offered by a hardware merchant in Gadsden, the county seat. The hardware man wanted to give her silverware for the prize, but Ruth thought light in the home would be of more value to the whole family, so, instead, she had him put glass in the front door and in the windows.

The family all became interested in Ruth's work and, today they have a pretty modern bungalow, the outgrowth of her bargain with the carpenter, and founded on her work in canning beans and tomatoes.

Ruth isn't the only one in Etowah county who has done well with canning, says the department of agriculture. It says further: "During the last four years the girls in the canning clubs have put up 175,555 cans of fruit and vegetables, worth about $29,400, and have sold all of these they could not use at home. Work like this is especially important now as a means of increasing and conserving the nation's food supply, but it is always of immense benefit to the community and the individual farmer. Ruth Anderson proved that a canning outfit and a knowledge of how to use it may be as effective in securing a new home as money in the bank."

Bumper Crop Year.

Washington, Aug. 10.—A corn crop surpassing any ever grown before; a reduction in wheat prospects due to damage to the spring wheat crop and record crops of barley, rye, white and sweet potatoes, tobacco and hay, were forecast today in the August 1 crop report of the Department of Agriculture.

Estimated corn production is 3,191,000,000 bushels, an increase of 57,000,000 bushels over the July forecast and 68,090,000 bushels above the record crop of 1912.

BILLION BUSHEL FOR NEXT YEAR

U.S. Dep't of Agriculture and State Officials Set High Mark For Wheat.

Washington, D. C., August 10.—The production of over one bushels of wheat and over eighty-three bushels rye, through the planting of 47,337,000 acres to winter wheat and of 5,131,000 acres to rye this fall, is the immediate war agricultural program for the nation announced by David F. Houston, Secretary of Agriculture. This record winter wheat average, an increase of 18 per cent over last year, would yield 672,000,000 bushels if the average yield for the past ten years is equaled, or under a repetition of the favorable conditions of 1914 would give 880,000,000 bushels. In either case with a spring wheat crop next year equal to that of 1915, the nation will have more than one billion bushels of wheat for domestic use and export.

This vastly increased production of wheat, needed in many cases, will be absolutely essential to prevent a serious shortage of breadstuffs next summer, should the growing corn, now behind the season, be much damaged by early frosts.

8 INSTRUCTIONS

Special Methods to Increase Yields of Wheat and Rye.

Specialists of the Department of Agriculture and the State Agricultural Colleges hope that by better methods the average wheat yield per acre will be at least maintained wherever there is a fertilizer shortage and will be increased in other sections. Much educational work will be done to make this desire an actuality, and in this campaign the most successful growers will have a prominent part. For instance, it is stated that on the land that could be sown to fall wheat this autumn, it is possible materially to increase the yield per acre by putting into practice some principles that are already well known to most farmers. These should appeal especially to those who cannot increase their usual acreages without doing injustice to other crops which should be grown. These principles may be summed up as follows:

1. Plow early. Give the plowed land two months to settle before sowing when possible.
2. Compact the late-plowed land with roller and harrow.
3. Don't plow after a cultivated crop. Prepare such land with disk and harrow.
4. Make the seed bed a fit place for the seed.
5. Sow with a drill, sound, plump, clean seed of adapted variety.
6. Prevent losses from smut by treating infected seed with formaldehyde.
7. Make the soil fertile with manure or fertilizers applied judiciously where needed.
8. Reduce winter killing by following the above suggestions.

MANY CLOWNS WITH CIRCUS

"Funny Men" for Making Multitudes Laugh to Be Here Next Monday.

It seems incongruous that men of college training and inventive genius should devote their lives to the promotion of frivolity, yet this is what a real circus clown does. With the Sells-Floto Circus, which comes to Hopkinsville Monday, August 13, are forty energetic, intelligent and studious clowns, whose every thought is directed toward making multitudes laugh.

In accomplishing this these clowns have made use of every science and every sport known under the sun. Punch and Judy were the first clowns. In the days of early kings an honored position was that of court jester. The clowns with the Sells-Floto Shows are jesters to "His Majesty, the American Citizen."

The court jester was a buffoon who promoted risibilities by both action and word. His latter day counterpart in the one-ring show was likewise, but when circuses began to grow so big the human voice would not fill the tent the clown had to resort to pantomime to promote humor.

The laugh to the circus patron means little, but to the circus clown it means success. To promote laughs the clowns with the Sells-Floto Circus have spent winters and fortunes contriving mechanical devices calculated to bring a humorous climax at the right moment. Some have resorted to caricatures, others to the ludicrous and others to the serious.

One might see a clown do some silly thing that arouses humor and may marvel why an intelligent man can do such nonsense. Yet this promotion of nonsense is made a lifetime study by the two-score of "funnies" with the Sells-Floto Circus.
